Highfields' Jill Clark honored by MHBFSA

Onondaga, Michigan – September 27, 2018 - Jill Clark, Community Services Director at Highfields, a human services organization, has earned the 2018 President's Award from the Michigan Home-Based Family Services Association (MHBFSA). Clark received the award at the 2018 MHBFSA Fall Conference in Frankenmuth, Michigan on September 27, 2018.

The President's Award recognizes individuals, agencies or families for innovative contributions to home-based counseling services.

Clark is the fifth Highfields employee to win the award. Other winners from Highfields were Clinical Director Tim Monroe, former CEO Carl Latona, former director of quality and program development Jill Peck, and administrative assistant Kris Koivu.

"Jill has dedicated her life to serving children and families," said Highfields' President/CEO, Brian Philson. "She is deserving of this award for her amazing work."

Clark started her career at Highfields as a Home-Based worker in 1988. Today she manages a team of nearly 60 employees and oversees the home-based services Highfields provides in Branch, Calhoun, Jackson, Hillsdale and Lenewee Counties.

Highfields is a nonprofit human services organization which provides home-based counseling services, residential care, and experiential education and support programs for about children, youth, and families in 13 mid-Michigan counties. For more information, please visit www.highfields.org.
