Randi C. Heathman of  Horton has been accepted as an associate member of the Independent Educational Consultants Association. IECA associate members are professionals who are in the process of transitioning to a career in educational consulting. To qualify as an associate member, a consultant must have established an educational consulting practice and have a minimum of one year's experience in educational placement, counseling, or college admissions.

Heathman has been an independent educational consultant since 2011 and is a former assistant director of admission at Albion College. She holds a bachelor's degree from Albion as well as a master's degree from Spring Arbor University. In addition to her IECA membership, she is also a member of the National Association for College Admission Counseling and the Michigan Association for College Admission Counseling.

Gov. Rick Snyder has appointed Brian D. Philson, president and chief executive officer of Highfields, Inc. to the Michigan Board of Social Work. He will begin a four-year term January 1, 2013.

Brian joined Highfields in July 2006 as vice president of programming and was named president and chief executive officer in August 2008. He is also an adjunct instructor for Spring Arbor University and Siena Heights University, a trainer of juvenile justice practitioners for the National Partnership for Juvenile Services, a consultant for the
